

ServSafe Alcohol Program Roll-Out Guidelines:

Oregon

In Oregon, responsible alcohol service training is mandatory. ServSafe Alcohol™ is not an approved program in Oregon.

All employees who mix, serve or sell alcohol must have a service permit. Managers who supervise these employees must also have a service permit. To qualify for a service permit you must:

- Complete a commission approved alcohol server education course and pass the exam within 45 days from date of hire.
- Complete the application for a service permit and have an authorized person (see application instructions for more information) sign the application.
- Remit the $23.00 permit fee to the authorized person and have the authorized person mail the application package to the Oregon Liquor Control Commission (OLCC).

For the service permit application and instructions, please see the following pages. A service permit must be renewed every 5 years.

The state requires initial alcohol server education courses to be at least 4.5 hours in length. Renewal courses may be shorter (usually half the instruction time) and may be taken, where available, to renew a service permit.

The OLCC oversees the voluntary Responsible Vendor Program (RVP). The licensee must:

- Require new employees who do not have a service permit to read and sign the OLCC brochure called What Every Store Clerk Needs to Know About Selling Alcohol (available at: https://www.oregon.gov/olcc/docs/publications/what_every_store_clerk_needs_to_know_with_quiz.pdf) or complete a similar alcohol education program or read similar materials before selling alcohol.
- Require employees to complete and pass an approved alcohol server course within 45 days of first selling or serving alcohol.
- Train new employees without a service permit about responsible alcohol sales and service within three days of first selling or serving alcohol.
- Post the establishment's policies on alcohol sales and checking I.D., and have each employee read and sign copies of these policies.
- Post signs informing employees and patrons of the legal requirements for selling or serving alcohol.
- Hold at least four training sessions on responsible alcohol service and sales each year
- Complete a Responsible Vendor application (available at <https://www.oregon.gov/olcc/pages/camp.aspx> or contact the OLCC.
